FROM VIRGINIA.

New York, May 6.-The Richmond Dis patch shows a terrible state of impoverish ment in which the people of Virginia are now found. Thousands of the inhabitants of Richmond, Petersburg and the surrounding country can be saved from star-vation only by the supplies of food which the United States commissaries furnish them. Strong desires are expressed for the removal of the bill by Government, of all restrictions on trade not contraband of war, so that facilities may be offered for a resuscitation of industry both in the towns and rural districts.

At present the farmers generally are without the implements or seeds necessary to do their planting, and unless these can be speedily procured there will be no crops forthcoming in the state this summer and

It is understood that the army of the James, commanded by Gen. Ord and consisting of the 24th and 25th corps will remain in Virginia for the present. It is said that the 25th corps consisting of colored troops will go into camp at City Point.

A portion of the army of the Potomac is expected to pass through Richmond on Thursday on its way to Washington.

The principal citizens and local authorities of Richmond are rapidly coming forward to the Provost Marshal's office and pictures are good; La Rue acquits himself taking the oath of allegiance to the government. Among others who have sub-scribed to it are Mayor Mayo, Judge Lyons and Littleton Tazewell, Prosecuting Attorney in one of the courts.

The Times Richmond correspondent says the notorious chief of the rebel detective squad, Gen. McCubbin, has surrendered himself. McCubhin left Richmond on Sunday, April 2d, in charge of the treasure which the rebel Secretary Trenholm had reserved for any emergency that might arise. He left Jeff. Davis, Trenholm, Benjamin, with Extra Billy Smith and a host of other leading confederates, at Greensboro. They stopped there three days and during the time all ate and slept in the cars, as the inhabitants refused to allow them to enter their dwellings, saying that they might be held responsible for harboring rebels.

Mr. Trenholm was taken very sick at Greenshore and visited the house of one of II. Barrett Commissioner of Pensions. It the leading members, who asked him to exchange gold for Confederate script. The Secretary refused on the plea that North Carolina had not furnished any of it, that it belonged to the State of Virginia. westigations now being held at St. Georges, of the attempt of Dr. Blackburn to introduce yellow fever into New York, Philadelphia, and other Northern cities. Blackburn visited Bermudia ostensibly on a philanthropic mission in connection with the cases of yellow fever. The oridence shows that he collected while there, bedding and clothing taken from fever patients, that he purchased and intended new clothing, which he packed in trunks and left in charge of parties with orders to forward them to Naw York in the spring. One witness testified that Blackburn represented himself as a confederate agent whose mission was the destruction of the Northern masses. It was also shown that several persons connected with the agency of the so-called Confederate States were cognizant of these facts. It is stated that there were ten trunks, three of which have been found and their contents buried by the Board of Health. Blackburn is well known in these provinges as a leading and ultra rebel.

President Johnson. In the estimation of the copperhead press of the country, Andrew Johnson is quite a different man now from what he was a few months ago. Then he was an abolitionized democrat who had proved recreant to his early political principles and professions, and had become the tool of a corrupt and designing administration for ends altogether disreputable and wicked. But new, as President of the United light. Their columns teem with eulogistic articles upon his Roman firmness and democratic tendencies. They cite the fact of his long experience in public affairs and his stern adherence to the cause of his country through evil as well as good report. They seem to dwell with especial delight upon his career as United States Senator, at that dark and critical period when Breckenridge, Toombs, Davis, Benjamin, Wigfall and the whole host of Southern traitors met nightly in secret conclave and plotted the overthrow of the government under the very shadow of the Capitol. Having persistently maligned him since the war broke out, just as they slandered and traduced Mr. Lincoln while living, they now give the new President as much praise and credit as they do the dead one. Some of them even go so far as to suggest that the democracy so called, take the President to their bosom, and into their confidence as truly as if he were one of Blackhawk war, a country lawyer, a repthemselves ; and the Milwaukee News innocently suggests that by a judicious use of the "emoluments of office" Mr. Johnson may greatly strengthen his own hands and conciliate the conservative men of the country. Just at this point the laugh comes in. "The ass knoweth his master's crib;" sayeth the good book, and these copperhead asses bray sweetly because they have no fodder. That is one reason for their friendship. Another is found in the fact that as Andrew Johnson will not deal as mercifully with rebels in arms at the South, as his predecessor, neither will he be as lenient with their unarmed sympathizers at the North. Now that the war is over and the danger of a copperhead insurrection in the free states is past, the Chicago Times and its kindred sheets may be allowed to emit their harmless treason as is their wont, but having the wholesome fear of hemp before their eyes, they will not presume too far upon the patience of Andrew Johnson. Many of these men no doubt see the gulf that yawns hencath their feet, and will honestly support the new President. The assassination of Mr. Lincoln has at last opened their eyes to the enormity of the crime of being copperheads, and they are resolved to save their political souls by a death bed repentance, believing with Dr. Watts that,

"While the lamp holds out to burn,"
The vilest singer may return."

How Sherman's Army Received the News of the Assassination.

A correspondent of the New York Tribune with Sherman's army at the time the news of Mr. Lincoln's assassination reached it, writes the subjoined account of its effect upon the army:

Never have I witnessed such wide spread, Every officer, every soldier, eve speaks and acts as if he had lost a dear and beloved friend. Surely the nation never knew how strong and sincere was the love felt for this good man until he was stricken down. The pure, unselfish, and patriotic statesman; the generous friend of man, the liberator of 4,000,000 of bondmen has fallen by the hand of the aseassin, and mingles his blood with that of thousands of his countrymen on the alter of his country. There is a feeling of unutterable amazement and horror at this foul, this gigantic crime.

The grief of every good man seems almost inconsolable; and wise and coolheaded Generals tremble at the dark cloud which this event casts over the future of our beloved country.

The whole current of feeling which was heginning to take a forbearing and even forgiving form from the teachings of Mr. Lincoln himself, and of other public men. has been chilled, changed toward the leaders of this Rebellion. The act, they say, seems to have been permitted by a wise Providence, to reveal the real animus, the fiendish malignity of the actors, aiders and abettors in this great conspiracy against freedom; and to teach us a lesson f justice. Many an officer and soldier has been heard to atter the wish that Johnston, now, would not surrender. They "want to have one more chance at them," and then, in the warning language of Gen. Sherman

"Woe to the people who seek to expend their wild passsions in assassination-There can be but one dread result." The ery of the whole army now is, "let justice be done to the head conspirator-the chief Apolyous of this hell-born Confederacy. send up a wild shout along the whole line to-day if they should hear of the failure of peace negotiations. They are burning to revenge this foul murder. The greatest precautions have been adopted to keep down excitement, and even to keep the particulars of the Washington tragedy from the troops

GEN. SCHURTZ.—Maj. Gen. Carl Schurtz, who has served his country faithfully during the war, now that the rebellion is crushed, has tendered his resignation and retires to private life. When the war broke out, he was our Minister at Madrid; but he could not bear to remain abroad when the struggle was doubtful. He tendered his resignation, came home and offered his services to the Government as a soldier, and won honorable distinction by deeds of bravery and heroic devotion to the cause of Freedom and Union. No purer patriot fought our battles; no more eloquent tongue exhorted his countrymen to join the standards of the Republic on the tented field, and no braver man drew a sword in her defense. The Germans may well be proud of Carl Schurtz.—Chicago Tribune.

ABRAHAM LINCOLN.

Remarks at the Funeral Services of the President, in Concord: C April 19, 1865.

BY R. W. EMERSON.

We meet under the gloom of a calamity which darkens down over the minds of good men in-all-civil-society, as-the fearful tidings travel over sea, over land, from country to country, like the shadow of an uncalculated eclipse over the planet. Old as history is, and manifold as its tragedies, I doubt if any death has caused so much pain to mankind as this has caused, or will cause, on its announcement; and this, not so much because nations are by modern arts brought so closely together, States, they see him in quite a dif- as because of the mysterious hopes and fears which, in the present day, are connected with the name and institutions of America.

In this country, on Saturday, every one was struck dumb, and saw, at first, only deep below deep, as he meditated on the ghastly blow. And, perhaps, at this hour, when the coffin which contains the dust of the President sets forward on its long march through mourning States, on its way to his home in Illinois, we might well be silent, and suffer the awful voices of the time to thunder to us. Yes, but that first despair was brief; the man was not so to be mourned. He was the most active and hopeful of men; and his work had not perished; but acclamations of praise for the task he had accomplished burst out in to a song of triumph, which even tears for his death cannot keep down.

The President stood before us a man of the people. He was thoroughly American, had never crossed the sea, had never been spoiled by English insularity, or French dissipation : a quite native, aboriginal man, as an acorn from the oak; no iping of foreigners, no frivolous accomplishments, Kentuckian born, working on i farm, a flatboatman, a captain in the resentative in the rural Legislature of Illi nois,-on such modest foundations the broad structure of his fame was laid. How slowly, and yet by happily prepared had touched its natural conclusion, and steps, he came to his place. All of us remember-it is only a history of five or six years-the surprise and the disappointment of the country at his first nomination by the convention at Chicago. Mr. Seward, then in the culmination of his good fame, was the favorite of the Eastern States. And when the new, and comparatively unknown name of Lincoln was announced, (notwithstanding the report of the acclamations of that Convention,) we the dangerous foible of the Republic, and heard the result coldly and sadly. It it was necessary that its enemies should seemed to rash, on a purely local reputation, to build so grave a trust, in such anxioness, to secure the salvation of the country ious times; and men naturally talked of the chances in politics as inculculable. But it turned out not to be chance. The profound good opinion which the people of Illinois and of the west had conceived of him, and which they had imparted to their colleagues, that they also might justify themselves to their constituents at home, was not rash, though they did not begin to know the riches of his worth.

A plain man of the people, an extraordinary fortune attended him. Lord Bacon says, "Manifest virtues procure reputation: occult ones, fortune." He offered no shin ing qualities at the first encounter; he did not offend by superiority. He had a face and a manner which disarmed suspicion, which inspired confidence, which confirmed good will. He was a man without vices. He had a strong sense of duty, which it was very easy for him to obey. Then he had what farmers call a long head; was excellent in working out the sum for himself; in arguing his case and convinc-ing you fairly and firmly. Then it turn-ed out that he was a great worker; had prodigious faculty of performance; worked casily. A good worker is so rare; every body has some disabling quality. In host of young men who start together, and promise so many brilliant leaders for the next age, each one fails on trial; one by bad health, one by conceit, or by love of pleasure, or lethargy, or an ugly tempereach has some disqualifying fault that scribing how a doctor was sent for, and throws him out of the career. But this universal, unfeigned sorrow over any event. man was sound to the core, cheerful, per-> ing so well. Then, he had a vast good-nature, which made him tolerant and accessible to all; displayed he muttered, with a sad letharfair-minded, leaning to the claim of the gy, "Useless, useless." These were the petitioner; affable, and not sensible to the last words he ever uttered. As he began affiction which the innumerable visits paid to die the sun rose and threw beams to him when President would have brought all the tree-tops. It was of a man's height to any one else. And how this good-nature became a noble humanity, in many a traging to case which the events of the war brought jaw drew spasmedically and obliquely to him, every one will remember; and with what increasing tenderness he dealt, with what increasing tenderness he dealt, the same began to swell; lividness, like a whole race was thrown on his compassion. The poor negro said of him on an impressive occasion, "Massa Linstretched his feet and threw his head back kum am eberywhere."

Then his broad good humor, running easily into jocular talk, in which he delighted and in which he excelled, was a rich gift to the wise man. It enabled him to keep his secret; to meet every kind of man, and every rank in society; to take off the edge of the severest decisions; to mask his own purpose and sound his com panion; and to catch with true instinct the temper of every company he address-ed. And, more than all, it is to a man of severe labor, in anxious and exhausting crises, the natural restorative, good as sleep, and is the protection of the overdriven brain against rancor and insanity.

He is the author of a multitude of good sayings, so disguised as pleasantries that it is certain that they had no reputation at first but as jests; and only later, by the very acceptance and adoption they find in the mouths of millions, turn out to be the wisdom of the hour. I am sure if give it that silence and forgiveness which this man had ruled in a period of less facility of printing, he would have become The army of Gen. Sherman, long tired of mythological in a very few years, like Esop war, and yearning for their homes, would or Pilpay, or one of the Seven Wise Masters, by his fables and proverbs. But the weight and penetration of many passages in his letters, messages, and speeches, hidden now by the very closeness of their application to the moment are destined pereafter to a very wide fame. What pregnant definitions; what uncrring common sense; what foresight; and, on great occasion, what lofty, and more than national, what humane tone! His brief speech at Geltysburg will not easily be urpassed by words on any recorded occasion. This, and one other American speech, that of John Brown to the court that tried him, and a part of Kossuth's speech at Birmingham, can only be compared with

> His occupying the chair of State was a triumph of the good sense of mankind, sick soldiers that can travel home and and of the public conscience. The inld-want to, be paid off and sent to their dle-class country had got a middle-class friends, and begin to cut down ex-President at last. Yes, in manners and If there is any more fighting to sympathies, but not in powers, for his powers were superior. This man grew according to the need. His mind mastered the problem of the day; and as the problem grew, so did his comprehension in the way of getting home nursing, set of it; Rarely was man so fitted to the the War Department to reducing expenses event. In the midst of fears and jealousies, in the Babel of counsels and parties, who was the children. He had the depart there before he ies, in the Babel of counsels and parties, this man wrought incessantly with all his might and all his honesty, laboring to his might and all his henesty, laboring to find what the people wanted, and how to obtain that. It cannot be said there is any exaggeration of his worth. If ever a surrender to Gen. Sherman makes the as-fertility of resources, his magnanimity ing. There, by his courage, his justice, his even temper, his fertile counsel, his humanity, he stood a heroic figure in the center of a heroic epoch. He is the true history of the American people in his time. Step by step he walked before them; slow with their slowness, quickening his march by theirs; the true representative of this continent; an entirely public man; father of his country, the pulse of twenty millions throbbing in his heart, the thought of their minds articulated by his tongue. Adam Smith remarks that the axe, which, in Houbraken's portraits of British kings and worthies, is engraved under those who have suffered at the block, adds a certain lofty charm to the picture. And who does not see, even in this tragedy so recent, how fast the terror and massacre are already burning into glory around the victim? Far happier this fate than to have lived to be wished away; to have watched the decay of his own faculties; to have seen,—perhaps even he,—the prover-bial ingratitude of statesmen; to have seen mean men preferred. Had he not lived long enough to keep the greatest promise that ever man made to his fellow-men,the practical abolition of slavery? He had seen Tennessee, Missouri and Maryland emancipate their slaves. He had seen Savannab, Charleston and Richmond surrendered; had seen the main army of the rebellion lay down its arms. He had con-

And what if it should turn out, in the unfolding of the web, that he had reached the term; that this heroic deliverer could not longer serve us; that the rebellion what remained to be done required new and uncommitted hands—a new spirit born out of the ashes of the war: and that Heaven, wishing to show the world a completed benefactor, shall make him serve as country even more by his death than by his life. Nations, like kings, are not good by facility and complaisance. "The kindness of kings consists in justice and strength." Easy good-nature has been in the next ages.

The ancients believed in a serene and seautiful Genius which ruled in the affairs of nations: which, with a slow but stern justice, carried forward the fortunes of certain chosen houses, weeding out single offenders, or offending families, and securing at last the firm prosperity of the favorites of Heaven. It was too narrow a view of the Eternal Nemesis. There is serene Providence which rules the fate of nations, which makes little account of time, little of one generation or race, makes no account of disasters, conquers alike by what is called defeat or by what is called victory, thrusts aside enemy and obstructions, crushes everything immoral as inhuman, and obtains the ultimate triumph of the best race by the sacrifice of everything which resists the moral laws of the world. It makes its own instruments, creates the man for the time, trains him in poverty, inspires his genius, and arms him for the task. It has given every race its own talent, and ordains that only that race which combines perfectly with the virtues of all shall endure

The Death of Booth. From the New York World's graphic report of the capture and death of Booth, the infamous assassin of the President, we made the following extract. After dehis arrival at the scene of the tragedy, the writer says: Just at his coming Booth had tent, all right for labor and liked noth- asked to have his hands raised and shown jaw drew spasmodically and obliquely downward; his cychalls rolled toward his and gave up the ghost. On Thursday the Secretary of War, without instructions of any kind, committed to Colonel Lafayette C. Baker, of the secret service, the stark corpse of J. Wilkes Booth. The secret service never performed its volition more secretively. "What ed its volition more secretively. "What have you done with the body?" said I to Baker. "That is known" he answered, "to only one man living besides myself. It is gone. I will not tell you where. The only man who knows is sworn to silence. Never till the great trumpeter comes shall the grave of Booth be discovered." And this is true. Last night, the 27th of April, a small row boat received the careass of the murderer, and only two men were in it; they carried the body off into the darkress, and out of the darkness it will never eturn. The river bottom may coze about it laden with great shot and drowning manacles. #### What Grant Said.

A friend who was with Gen. Grant insmediately ofter the capitulation of Lee, re lates a conversation which that brave and modest soldier had with his wife and a staff officer at City Point. "Well, General," said the latter, "you will go up to Rielmond to-morrow, I suppose?"
"No," said Gen. Grant, "I have a day's work in Washington, and then I want to go on with Mrs. Grant to New Jersey and see the children," "What's to be done at Washington?" was the astonished reply; "one would think you would like to see the inside of the city you have been pounding at for a year.' Said the General: "Why we must stop the draft; let the friends, and begin to cut down expenses.

have more than enough men to do it." "The General went to Washington as he had planned, making no triumphal entry into Richmond, put the rick soldiers hardly reached the depot there before he orders for retrenching expenditures, stopping manufactures of arms, discharging convalescent soldiers, cancelling the charters of needless vessels; and whatever class may tend to the speedy restoration of a happy and lasting peace."

Borghum for Fodder.

I have seen several articles lately in your paper on the culture of corn for fod-der, and I have been surprised that no one has tried sorghum for the same purpose. In the Patent Office report, there is an account from the south of France, which states that forty-eight and a half tons (green, of course) have been raised on one nere of ground. How much it will lose in drying I have no idea; but this much I do know, that, sown brordcast at the rate of two bushels to the acre, it will yield more feed than anything I have ever ried in the way of grass. I have tried it for two years, and have found the yield truly surprising—I should think more than two tons of dry feed, but, never having weighed it, I cannot speak pos-itively, though I am perfectly satisfied that it is far superior to anything I have ever tried, not even excepting Hungarian grass, so much lauded some years ago. Sow it in good corn ground, as early as it can be put in good order; harrow smooth, the finer the better; and when the seed is sown, go ever it with a bush; it must not be covered deeply, and if the seed is good it needs no soaking. Let those who think so favorably of corn fod-dtr try the sorghum, and I do not think they will bother with corn. My horses and cows prefer it to kind of feed I can give them. I have tried them repeatedly, and they will leave the best timothy for the sorghum and entit up clean. The blades we pull from the cane we grow for syrup are preferred by the stock to corn blades, and they will deyour it with the greatest avidity. By sow ing early, it can be cut with a strong cradle at the best time for curing properly. After being cut a few days, I have tied it up in bundles and cocked the same a cheat or cats. A large quantity of seed sown to the acre prevents the stalk growing too thick, which renders it easy to cure -Car. Country Gentleman.

Value of Soap Suds. The value of this article as a stimulant of vegetable life cannot be too highly appreciated. It contains the aliment of plants in a state of ready solution, and then applied, acts not only with imme diate and obvious effect, but with a sus ained energy which pertains to few even of the most concentrated manures. When is not convenient to apply it in irrigation-the most economical method, per haps, of using it-it should be absorbed by some material which may be used as an ingredient in the compost heap. Sods muck, and other similar articles should be deposited where the suds from the sink and laundry may find its way to them, and be absorbed, for the benefit of crops In this way several loads of manure suitable for the support and sustenance of any crop, may be made at comparatively small expense. This highly putrescent character of this fermentable liquid qualitie sit admirably for the irrigation of compost heaps of whatever material compos ed. Being a potent fertilizer, it must, of necessity, impart additional richness to almost any material to which it may added. Try it, and mark the results.

Milking Cows.

Cows should always be treated kindly and as far as possible have the same milk er. A fractious man should not be allow ed to handle a spirited cow. Kindness and gentleness are always best-beating and pounding should not be tolerated. If a cow or heifer persist in kicking under kind treatment, take a small rope and quietly fasten it around the opposite forefoot, and thence bring it over her back so as to hang by the milker. When she kicks again without saying a word, draw her foot up to her body. You can now handle her as you please. She will struggle to release her foot, but to no purpose, and will soon crouch to the floor. Then let her get up again, and pet her a little. If she kicks repeat the operation as often, and you will soon find she will not move a foot some irritating cause like sore teats or sharp finger nails.

Disposition of the Soil.

Soil has a constant disposition to mellow and improve itself. Winter aids it in this respect. So does the heat of the summer. The particles are the more finely divided by the aid of these two. Water has also an effect. Manure has a still farther effeet : mechanically it helps the soil. But out of order, and are readily adapted to the plow and the cultivator help more to any kind of sewing. We would advise divide the soil than any other source, or all the sources combined. The plow, the harrow, the cultivator, as well as the spade and the hoc, are the grand implements to divide and mellow your soil—in other words, disolves it. The deeper you work it the better. But work it not too wet; neither too dry but when it falls most apart without pack ing. To grease your ground is to kill it.
Aid nature, then, in mellowing your soil.

Killing Thistles.

A correspondent of the Canadian Far mer, who has failed in destroying thistles either by mowing or ordinary summer fallowing has succeeded by repeated plow-

ings. He says:
"Four years ago I plowed four scres eight times, and have not seen one thistle on that piece of ground since, excepting where they branch out from the fence The year following I plowed a field six times over, and a few old ones came up the year after. Last summer I plowed several times with a wide-pointed cultivator. The last plowing was done about the end of September. I have walked over it since, and have not seen one thistle make its appearance."

Special Fertilizers.

If you use special fertilizers-and it will be for your interest to do so when you can obtain them-use them so as to enable you to mark accurately the results. Guano, pondrette, sulphate of lime, nitrate of soda and superphosphate of lime are yet but imperfectly understood. They are doubtess valuable, but require to be more carefully studied in their results.

Mutton.

A late English writer says that a sheep, to be in high order for the palate of the epicure, should not be killed earlier than five years old, at which age the mutton will be rich and succulent, of a dark color and full of the richest gravy; whereas, if only two years old, it is flabby, pale and

Sewing-Machines .- Of the many inventions and improvements of sewing-machines, none have so satisfactorily stood the test of time and service as Grover & Baker's. while you are milking, unless there is They have taken the highest premiums at the recent State Fairs of fifteen States; they have, moreover, received the warmest encomiums from all persons who have ever used the machines, and those who have had opportunities to compare the different styles of machines, generally prefer Grover & Baker's to any other. They do the work neatly and well, do not get our lady readers, who are in want of a sewing-machine, to call at Grover and Baker's.

THE CULTIVATOR OF CORN .- The large amount of corn to be planted this season, renders it necessary for the producer to have some improved implement for its cultivation. To meet this demand, I am now building "The Badger State" gig corn planter.

After six months experimenting with different models, we have one which we are willing should be put to the test, and that it should stand or fall on its own merits. A lengthy description does not seem nine acres three times, and cultivated it to be necessary. We will simply say that we are confident it will perform all that any cultivator will, and all that any farmer will require of it. It has six shovels, or four, as desired. The shovels are so arranged as to cultivate wide or narrow, shallow or deep; and they all have a very One Dollar to $100,000 easy side motion. To say that they are made under the supervision of G. F. Lane, is a sufficient guarantee that they will be well made. In fact, they will be warranted in every respect. The Badger State gig cultivator will be sold this season at $50 at the shop. Call and see it at the shop one block south of the Hyatt House.

Is now believed to lie doing the most extensive business of the teeth passess through thre distinct stages. FIRST STAGE.

OFFICE IN MYERS' BLOCK,

It usually commences in the dentine, beneath the on amel, and is first indicated by a dark, leaden colored apot, when at length the cuamel breaks through which gives the first warning of decay. Still the toot does not ache until the decay reaches the nerve of pulp, first indicated by soreness, afterwards by active half-mattion.

SECOND STAGE.

Now the decay has exposed the pulp or nerve, the pulp into the afflicted with the toothache, jumping tood ache, &c., No language can give any adequate idea of the pair experienced. Robert Burns says it is the "hell of all diseases." The pain is throbbing, shooling, darting through all the branches of the fifth pain of nerves, giving rise to neuralgin, headache, chills an fever, constipation, and a furred tongue. Acidity the stomach, dyspepsia, and all its disagreealle consequences, are spit to stiend decay of the teeth. The prient expresses the wish perhaps a thousand time that he had not one tooth in his head, and b, the drow and horrars of having them extracted.

THIRD STAGE.

Now the iflammation has reached the end of the fong or roots, the periosteum or membrane around the fung is inflamed, the tooth is alcrating at the root, indicated by a dull, throbbing pain, someness of the teath to the touch, swelling, &c. The face often aveils so budly that it is impossible for the patient to open the month Atthe end of from three to ten days an alveolar abscess forms and opens over the fang of the affected tooth which gives some relief, and sometimes gets almost well; but the slightest irritation, getting cold or getting the feet wet, is liable to give rise to repeated attacks. At last the tooth fails to pieces, leaving only the fangs in the jaw, which are a flithy unisance as long as they remain. The above cuts show two teeth, a large molar and an eye tooth, extracted during the third stage of the disease.

SIX YEAR MOLARS. During the sixth year of the child's age, the first large molars appear. These and all the teeth that appear afterwards are permanent, and not sited as people ofter suppose. The first molars are very firmly set and the most useful of all the teeth and ought to be saved build means, but are too often lost by neglect.

THE REMEDY

Is simple and certain. As soon as you discover a small cavity the size of a pinheud, call at the DENTAL FACTOS and have it well filled, which will save you an untole amount of suffering, headds you will keep your test for future usefulness. During the Second Stage there it wo remedies, the one is to destroy the neve, the other is extraction. All others are but temporary. Tain's Stage.—Now the only remedy is to extract the offending member which will be painful on account a the soreness, and it often happens the swelling is as great that it is impossible for the patient to open though the soreness.

CHLOROFORM AND ETHER

Proves of the greatest value, enabling us to extract the most painful tooth without the least pain. I have used it profusely, though very cantionaly for a period of ten years without any strions accident. In St. Bartholomaws Hospital it was administered in 9,000 cases without an accident. In they's Hospital, London, it was administered in unpwards of 12,000 cases before a death occurred. In the great Crimean war it was administered upwards of 25,000 times without accident, for which we have the testimony of Mons Florens. Or. Macteal thinks it saved many lives in the British Army. Where now is the Nitrous vivil 6as? Why after three days run in this city, it went down, down to the everlasting dark regions of oblivion.

EXTERNAL CARIES.

The above cut shows one of the most destructive diseases that ever attacks the human teeth. This disease is indicated first by a dark brownish color next to the gums, the enamel softens, the teeth appear as though a sort of canker was eating into them, they are extremely sensitive, and at learth the grown are are extremely sensitive, and at length the crowns are untirely destroyed, leaving the fangs in the jaw a fifthy mass of disease.

The Remen's constitutional and local. It seems to be caused by an unhealthy acid accreted from the unicons membrane of the mouth, most commonly appearing in those who have skin diseases or a tendency to that class of diseases. The treat should be filled if they can be with any prospect of success and other constitutional remedies adapted to the case may be had at the DENTAL FACTORY.

AND TARTAR ON THE TEETH,

AND TARTAR ON THE TEETH.

The above cut shows the oppearance of the teeth when encrusted with tartar and diseased gums not yet beyond a remedy. In this country the water is hard, and strongly impregnated with line, us all know who ever saw the inside of the kettle. A substance nearly like that in the tea-kettle, when it is coated with limenfinds its way out through the secretions of the mouth, and eposit on the teeth mostly during the night. It is soft at first, and may be brushed off very easy in the morning with a little song and soft water. If left on the teeth it soon hardens almost like heick, gradually increasing in thickness, irritating the gums, causing them to swell and bleed at the slightest touch. A low grade of inflamation is set up, the cockets of the teeth are gradually absorbed or eat away, at if by a sort of canker, and the teeth finally become loose, rise up and fall out. The mouth presents a fifthy appearance, which is not definive: effect matter exades from the edges of the gums. The breath is loaded with effluvia, and so nauscous that it oftens sickens the lumntes of a large apartment, and is repulsive in the extreme.

The remedy is first to remove all tartar with the scalers—polish the teeth and brush them with the imperial tooth powder once or twice a day: this rarely fails to effect a permanent cure, and all the fills in the mouth will disappear in less than three days. Pure soft water for commondrink if it can be he fill in the mouth will disappear in less than three days. Pure soft water for commondrink if it can be he fill in the mouth will disappear in less than three days.

The remedy is first for the mouth will disappear in less than three days. Pure soft water for commondrink if it can be he dill and and an many lemons and as much fruit we you can get.

Books. COTTSCHALK ON KNABE. [Translated from the French.]

After having played on the French.]

After having played on the Finne of Messrs. Knabe & Co., it is impossible not to bear testimony to their qualities, which have acquired for them the eminent reputation which they enjoy. The Pianes of their manufacture, on which I have played, are exceedingly remarkable for their qualities. The base is powerful without harshness, and the upper notes sweet, clear and harmoniously incllow, (chrystaline,) and I do not heelitate to express in regard to these instruments my entire satisfaction, and to declare that they are equal if not superior to the best manufactured in Europe or this country by the most celebrated makers.

THE SPRING CAMPAIGN.

The enemy is upon us! Not one enemy but a multitude. From swamp and morass' from vale and prairie from filthy streets and docks, from takes, rivers, and lagoins, they rise to assail us. No man sees them, none is aware of their presence until smitten down pale and helpless on a couch of pain.

Who are these focs? Not embattled rebels, but assallants much more terrible,—the armics of the air! Mephitic exhalations, fogs that chill the marrow,—the elements of disease that whater held in chains, but which the cun and rain have liberated from the soffened soil to prey upon the unprotected and the feeble.

How shall they be bailled? Simply by invigorating the stomach and the nervous system. The purcet and most harmless of tonics, HOSTEITER'S STOMACH BITTERS, is accessible to all. Why risk Chills and Ferer, Billous, Bemittents, Dyspepsia, Bowel Com-plaints, Norrous Prostration, or any of the epidemics and endemics which "crop out" everywhere with the coming of the spring, when they can be effectually prevented by the occasional use of the gentlest stim ulant, the finest afterative, and the best stomachic eve drawn from the resources of the vegetable kingdom Its like is not to be found as a PROTECTATE OF a REMEDI. either among the standard pr scriptions of the Facul-

EAPERS, REAPERS FOR SALE AND REAPERS, REPAIRED.—The undersigned have on hand about experty-five of the Webber respert, which were made last year and have been well housed since being made, which, owing to the high price of iron and material, can sell at least fity per cent, cheeper for cash than any reapers made this as ason. Persons contemplating buying reapers, would do well to secure one of these as none others will be built of this pattern this summer.

We are also ready to commence repairing the Webber reaper. None others are wanted to repair. Any one wanting light gear put on the old boilt reapers can have it changed here cheeper than at any other place in Book county. Ering them along early. They will be done th aper than if they were all brought in just before harrear. We will warrant to work well on tame grass and ordinarily smeeth ground.

Any one who has bought the Webber reaper of L. B. Carle, in Janesville, can have the mowers on them as they are the same as those at Arton. The place of repairing is Afton, Wis.

Ten Dollar Washer. The Vitaling Ton MACHINE:

SIMPLE, PRACTICAL, THOROUGH.

IT WILL WAS A FROM ONE TO TWENTE PIECES AT ONCE!

Our machines are as perfect as ever any machine will be. They will wash in the most perfect manner all fibries from a collar to a blanket, whit the greatest lease. They will not only save three fourths of the lor and soap, but garnents will last twice as long when washed in them.

A Bank-bill can be placed in the machine with a dozen dirty collars, and the collars washed clean, without doing the least injury to the till. It is the simplest as well as the cheapest machine how in use. The washing is entirely under the control of the operator, ro that dirty parts of a garneat can be washed without unnecessarily rubbing the clean parts. This machine can only be appreciated by seeing it in operation. It will be on exhibition in a few days.

The Needle Cannot be Set Wrong,

Thus avoiding the great trouble of other machines. In this it is so easy that a child may set it in the dark with unerring correctness every time.

NO BREAKING OF NEEDLES.

The blade of the needle is less than % of an inch long, and is straight. It is less than half the length of other machine needles, many of which are curved, there fore more easily bent or broken—a great source of annoyance, expense and trouble. The Hemmer and Feller car never be set wrong. Any one may adjust them in the dark. The hem may be of any width. No other hemmer or feller is like this. It turns the hem on the right or upper side, as you want it.
